Imperial College London

The Disabled Students' Allowances- Information for UK students

Check your eligibility for the Disabled Students' Allowances (DSA)

Not eligible for DSA support? Contact Imperial College's Disability Advisory Service to discuss what support we may be able to provide you with during your studies.

Complete an application form and Send your evidence to your Funding Body. This might be a letter from your doctor or recognised medical or health practitioner or a diagnostic report if you have a specific learning difficulty. The application form (a DSA1 form) can be found on the government's student finance pages.

Postgraduate student? Email Section 5 of your application form to Imperial College's Disability Advisory Service for a member of the team to complete.

Book your Needs Assessment Centre once your Funding body confirms you can book a 'DSA Assessment of Need'.

Attend the Needs Assessment
You should then receive your Needs Assessment report approx. 2 weeks after your appointment.

Receive your Letter of Entitlement from your Funding Body.

Organise your support
Your Letter of Entitlement will explain how to organise your support.

Make an appointment with a disability advisor at Imperial College to discuss additional support you may be able to receive during your studies.
